END OF BITTER FIGHT.

"Two physicians had a long and stubborn fight with an abcess on my right lung" writes J. F. Hughes of DuPont, Ga. "and gave me up. Everybody thought my time had come. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The benefit I received was striking and I was on my feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health." It conquers all Coughs, Colds and Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed by W. A. Allen and G. W. Fisher, druggists. Price 50c, and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

VALUABLE OLD MAP.

Panorama of Constantinople In 1559 Discovered In Leyden.

Dr. E. Oberhammer of the University of Munich discovered recently in the University of Leyden, in Holland, a panorama of Constantinople executed in 1559 by a German artist, Melchior Lorichs, under the protection of the imperial ambassador at the court of Sultan Suleiman the Great, says the Chicago News. The map is remarkable for the clearness of its outlines. It shows the Turkish capital beginning at the Bosporus end of the Golden Colors have been so carefully applied to the pen drawing that the architectural peculiarities of 1559 may easily be compared with those of the present day. The structure and equipment of the vessels in the Bosporus are distinctly revealed. The panorama is eleven and a half yards long by a half yard wide. The kaiser has pronounced it the most important artistic and historical discovery of recent times and has given a large sum for a half size reproduction in photographic colors.

New York Post at Washington. He is a graduate of Michigan university and while there lived for a time in the family of Judge Cooley, afterward the distinguished chairman of the interstate commerce commission. Day was then, as now, spare of stature and not particularly robust looking, but wiry and of strong vitality, with a fair taste for out of door sports, especially running and jumping, and not a bad ball player. His most conspicuous characteristic was his self poise in matters of opinion. There was nothing aggressive or bumptious about him, but a judgment once formed was sufficient for him till some one could bring him a first rate reason for changing it, and it made no visible difference to him whether his companions generally shared it or not. He was very studious, though not belonging in the "grub" category, and his quiet, uneffusive manner and his almost shy way of retiring within himself when he preferred reflection to conversation were a bar to his making any very violent personal attachments among his fellows, though all held him in respect. The expression of Mr. Day's face always impresses first observers with the notion of melancholy, and it is not till after acquaintance has ripened pretty well that the dry, quaint humor behind the solemn expression peeps out here and there. On the class day of the class of 1870, to which Day belonged, the "prophet" read a poetical forecast of the careers of the several graduates elect, in which these lines occurred:

Day is a dismal undertaker, drives rushing trade, And also drives a solemn hearse, keeps coffins ready made; He advertises to look sad and weep-himself, at least-And furnish mourners if required at just six bits apiece. He keeps a mining engineer to scoop the The scooping is the pleasant part that Mr.

Waters plays. It might have been the painful duty of his biographers to record Day's failure to get through college. In mathematics he was, if not a dull scholar, at least a most uninterested one. He would overcome his difficulties by dogged hard work, but it was always a hateful task, and he made no secret of the fact. He did manage to get through, and with a reasonable standing on this line of study, though another affair threatened for awhile his

a group of members of his class got up a burlesque on the programme of the junior exhibition. Such publications were against the rules of the universit, and offenders were often severely punished. On this occasion the faculty made a searching investigation, finally rounding up a lot of the young fellows and putting them through a fire of questions and cross questions, afterward retiring to a private room to discuss the results and formulate a judgment. Somebody-tradition has it that Day was the man-suggested that the student "suspects" should bore a hole through the floor of the apartment in which the faculty conference was to be held. This was done; the entire proceedings were noted down by hidden eavesdroppers, a burlesque on the meeting was prepared, and the professors were actually put into so ridiculous a light that to save their own faces they dropped the whole matter. This direct manner of procuring information doubtless was only a forerunner of the tactics employed nearly thirty years later in Washington, in the case of Dupuy de Lome and the fatal

THREADED NEEDLE IN BABE Knot on the Skin Leads to a Strange

Discovery. While a ten-month-old child of Harry McKinley at Burnham, near Lewiston, Pa., was creeping about the floor on Jan. 6 it was heard to utter a scream, says the Philadelphia Press. The mother could find nothing wrong with the child, but he continued to give evidence of suffering until the other morning, when the mother saw a small black spot on one of the child's hips. This proved to be a knot on the end of a black thread. When the mother tried to remove the thread, she found it was of considerable length. She became frightened and called in a neighbor. The two women after much difficulty succeeded in getting out a long thread with a needle attached, which had evidently entered the child's flesh and worked its way into the body until its progress was stopped by the knot on the end of the thread.

For persons desiring a quantity of bot water on short notice the water heater now described will prove particularly valuable, though it will be found useful on all occasions requiries hot water, says a writer in the Scientific American. The device is designed to rapidly heat flowing water or if used in connection with a reservoir to heat water circulating therefrom and thus store up a quantity of bot water. The reservoir or water tank is provided with two pipes connected at their lower ends by a U shaped coupling. One of these pipes, which is provided with means for heating the water con-

A discharge cock is connected with the hot water pipe, through which the water may be drawn off as required.

The heating device consists of a fine wire wound in coils about the pipe, the latter being covered with an insulating coat of mica or other equivalent insulating substance. The wire offers a

"I am feeling quite well," writes Miss Dorcas A. I.ewis, of No. 1129 24th St., Washington, D. C. "My cough is very much better, and I owe it all to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I cannot say too much in praise of the medicine. I had been quite a sufferer for a long time, and after reading Doctor Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser thought I would try his 'Golden Medical Discovery,' I commenced taking it in May, 1899. Had not been sleeping well for a long time. Took one teaspoonful of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and sleep nearly all night without coughing, so I continued taking it. I am in great sympathy with everybody who suffers with a cough. I had been a sufferer for more than ten years. I tried lots of different medicines and different doctors, but did not feel much better. I coughed until I commenced spitting blood, but now I feel much stronger and am entirely well. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the best medicine I have ever taken.
